PRICE INCREASE FOR ANTHRACITE IS UNWARRANTED

Consumers Warned Against "Buying Panic" Which Will Play Into Hands of Jobbers—Summer Discounts Should Be Made Says Commission—"Blacklist" Is Threatened.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, May 5.—A "buying panic" which will play into the hands of retailers and jobbers and cost the American public millions is imminent in the anthracite coal industry. The federal trade commission today took steps to check it by placing the facts in the case before the United States.

There is absolutely no excuse for the panic, the commission says, nor for any increase in price. On the contrary it declares the present prices are in no way warranted by the cost of production. The commission takes sharp issue with jobbers who have declared that they could not make summer discounts. The larger anthracite operators, it finds, will make their usual reductions and it says there is no reason why these should not be passed on to the consumers. The commission also promises to create a "blacklist" of all who take undue advantage of the necessities of the people.

Supply is Adequate.

In its report the commission also finds that there is an adequate supply of coal; that it will be taken out as usual during the summer, and that mine prices will be reasonable. It declares that congress must enact legislation to prevent speculation in coal and to see that coal cars are kept moving to their destinations and not held up for speculative reasons.

After reviewing the resolution which authorized the investigation and declaring that the 1916 buying panic was unnecessary the report continues:

"The commission finds that at the present moment, the symptoms of the former unwarranted panic are recurring. This is intolerable and the commission now, without waiting to complete its report on past conditions, is moved to call the attention of the senate to the danger threatening consumers of anthracite coal."

No Reason for Increase.

"The commission is able to say that there is no good reason for a panic in the anthracite market, nor for any increase in the present selling price to consumers. On the contrary the retail prices generally obtaining today are unwarranted. The wage increase agreed upon on April 26, 1917, will involve an increased cost of production of between 24 and 36 cents a ton. The price at which leading operators have announced that they will sell will not exceed this increase. There is no justification for a larger increase to be passed on to the consumer and these mine prices will not justify present retail prices in many instances."

The new wage scale with the United Mine Workers is a beneficial and steady factor in the industry. The commission has received assurances from the responsible anthracite operators and from the situation representative that this will be a year of unusually large production. The commission is assured that there is no reason why mine prices should not continue for the season and be subject to the usual summer discounts, namely, 40 cents per ton in May, 30 cents in June and 20 cents in July and 10 cents in August.

Consumer Should Benefit.

"The commission believes that the custom normally followed by the majority of retailers of passing the benefit of these discounts on to the consumer, should be followed by the whole trade."

"If the public is again so deceived as to indulge in a scramble for coal such as occurred last winter, the favorable situation reported may be nullified. A demand for four months coal in the single month of May, will be deplorable."

"If, on the other hand, purchases are made as usual, there will be no disturbance and small chance for speculators to fleece the public. The best thing that can happen now is for everyone to buy as has been his custom for former years. Many points must build up their winter supply during the summer when water transportation is available. Transportation will thereby be relieved of undue burdens and the coal will be steadily distributed during the summer against the needs of the winter."

"During the coal panic of the winter of 1916 and 1917, one of the greatest factors in the distressing and intolerable condition was the unwarranted and indefensible practice of using coal cars for warehouses. Coal was held in cars by speculators while shortages of cars was alleged as a cause of fuel shortage. The commission calls your attention also to other activities of speculators in anthracite coal who perform no useful service in the distribution of the coal, who insert themselves as a disturbing and clogging factor upon the industry and whose unearned profits are often much greater than those enjoyed by either miner or operator or honest dealer. These profits, in many instances more than 100 per cent, were paid by the consumer, to

VEGES BLOW OPEN HURLEY P. O. SAFE

Daring Burglary Committed While Villagers Slumbered—Booty Consisted Only of a Little Money and a Few Stamps—Mr. Elmendorf's Accounts Taken.

Some time during Friday night the post office and store of Peter Elmendorf at Hurley was broken into and the safe blown open and papers, valuable only to Mr. Elmendorf, taken. The robbers secured but very little money or stamps but the store accounts of Mr. Elmendorf which were kept in the safe together with other valuable papers were taken. A mail bag kept in the post office was taken and the supposition is that the thieves took the mail sack to carry away the stolen papers. Included in the papers was the charge account of Mr. Elmendorf and with these gone it is impossible to tell the amount of customers' bills.

There was an entertainment in the village and many of the people were up late at night but heard no sound of an explosion and the supposition is that the job was done by a professional safe blow.

No one knew of the robbery until this morning when the office was opened up. The door was found open and in the store and post office the safe was found blown open and stripped of its contents. The job was probably done some time between 2 and 3 o'clock. In gaining access to the store tools taken from the blacksmith shop were used to pry open the front door. On account of the rain of last evening all tracks of wagons or automobiles as well as footprints were covered and no track of the robbers was discovered. The sheriff's office was notified and Sheriff Shults went to the scene of the robbery, but owing to the time which had elapsed the robbers had had sufficient time to get away.

Just what value the papers would be to anyone except Mr. Elmendorf cannot be imagined as they were accounts of his customers. Their loss will mean a large amount of money to Mr. Elmendorf, who will have to depend upon his memory to make collections. The papers may later be found abandoned somewhere when the thieves find that they are of no value.

Friday afternoon two men came to the post office and stopped to write a letter which they wanted to mail at Hurley. They stopped several minutes in the post office and said they were on their way to Kingston. They might have been on a tour of inspection preparing for the night's work, but other than that they were strangers in the village there is no grounds for suspicion.

TURKEY SEEKS A SEPARATE PEACE?

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berne, May 5.—Reports that Turkey may make a separate peace were strengthened today by a despatch from an unnamed city on the frontier saying that Talaat Pasha, grand vizier of Turkey, has announced in Vienna that Turkey's peace terms have been communicated to President Wilson. According to the despatch, the wording of which was vague, the grand vizier made the announcement in an interview in an Austrian newspaper.

With Enormous Bills for Car Demurrage.

"Within the scope of its powers, this commission will continue to exert every influence to avert the threatened recurrence of the conditions obtaining in the winter of 1916-1917. The commission will expose any unscrupulous wholesaler, jobber or retailer who seeks to mislead the public into a belief that exorbitant prices are justifiable or that there is any necessity to join in a frenzied bidding to secure immediate delivery for future needs."

The commission will ask the cooperation of the patriotic newspapers of the country to the end that the public may be kept constantly informed of what, in justice and reason, it should be expected to pay for anthracite and as to the volume of the production and stocks on hand exist at such times. The commission has assurances from the anthracite operators that in case of local shortages being called to their attention by the commission the operators will relieve such local stringencies immediately."

The report concluded:

"The fair retail price is that at the mouth of the mine, plus the cost of freight, and the reasonable charge to the consumer by the retailer. The May price of ordinary white ash anthracite, allowing for the forty per cent discount, follows:
"Egg, gross ton (2,240 lbs) $4.95; net ton (2,000 lbs) $3.61. Stove gross ton, $4.50; net, $3.84. Chestnut, gross ton, $4.40; net, $3.93."

STREET EMPLOYEES HAVE PAY RAISED

B. P. W. Boosts Street Force 25 Cents a Day—Hasbrouck Avenue Hill to be Paved—Willite to be Laid on Albany and Railroad Aves.—Other Matters.

Boosting the pay of the members of the street department twenty-five cents a day; deciding to lay "Willite," a new paving material, which its manufacturer states "will last for twenty years after it is laid" on Albany and Railroad avenues, paving Hasbrouck avenue hill, and the building of a concrete bridge in Wilbur over the Twaalfskill brook were the more important matters taken up at a busy session of the board of public works held on Friday afternoon at the city hall with Mayor Canfield presiding and Commissioners Burgevin, Tammany and Staples present.

Alfred Fischer of Seventh ward, also wanted a board walk laid but neglected to state on what street in his ward it was to be built.

A. H. Chambers of the Stuyvesant Garage on Clinton avenue, wrote asking permission to lay a 1,000 gallon tank in front of the garage. The request was referred to the street superintendent and city engineer with power. The same action was taken in regard to the request of J. Johnson to install a metal awning roof in front of his garage on Washington avenue.

What About Hazel?

The New York Central wrote asking what had been done in regard to eliminating the Emerick street crossing. It was referred to the city engineer to establish a grade on the new street and that Superintendent Van Keuren go ahead and build the street. As told in these columns before the grade crossing is eliminated by cutting through a new street which the common name is Hazel street in honor of Alderman Schick's daughter. This new street will now be built.

Can't Flow Water.

August Albright wrote that water overflowed the lot at the corner of Ravine and German streets, and that he would like the board to take some action in the matter as he was anxious to plant the ground. Referred to the city engineer and street superintendent with power.

All Are Happy.

After some discussion the board unanimously decided to increase the pay of all members of the street department twenty-five cents a day. The increase to take effect with the payroll of May 1 to May 15. This means that all of the city force with the exception of Superintendent Van Keuren who receives a salary will get a much needed boost. The pay for laborers has been $2 a day and will now be $2.25. Others who may have got more per day will also receive the increase.

Some time ago Alderman Fischer of the Seventh ward had the city fathers pass a resolution to "lay a board walk from Ravine street to Wilbur avenue." This resolution was sent to the board of public works last month, but was laid on the table. It was taken up at the meeting Friday.

But Where Oh Where.

A close study of the resolution prepared by Alderman Fischer reveals the fact that the alderman was evidently undecided what street he wanted his board walk laid as a careful reading of the resolution will show.

A glance on the map shows that Ravine street is over a mile from Wilbur avenue and does not connect with the avenue at any point or section. It was hardly likely that Alderman Fischer wanted the board walk laid over the hills and valleys lying between the two streets.

Maybe He Meant Abel Street.

The board after hearing Alderman Fischer's resolution read decided that the alderman must want the board walk laid on Abel street between Ravine street and Wilbur avenue. This meant a distance of about one mile and a half.

The resolution was referred to city

ENGINEER AND STREET SUPERINTENDENT TO INVESTIGATE AND PREPARE AN ESTIMATE OF THE PROBABLE COST AND REPORT BACK TO THE BOARD.

To Pave Hasbrouck Ave. Hill.

After some discussion the board decided to pave the Hasbrouck avenue hill from Delaware avenue toward Murray street with paving block. The city engineer will also prepare a plan for installing for catch basins on the hill to care for the flow of rain water.

The hill has been in bad shape for a long time and the street superintendent was instructed to go ahead with the work as quickly as possible.

To Notify Property Owners.

Mayor Canfield called attention to the fact that it would be wise to notify property owners to make all necessary connections before the hill was paved and also that the water department and the Kingston Gas & Electric Company be notified. This action will be taken in the future where streets are to be repaved, and when a street has been improved no one will be allowed to dig it up without a permit from the board which will meet to discuss the request.

Van Wageningen Gets Contract.

The S. B. Van Wageningen Company, Inc., a local concern, was given the contract to repair West Chestnut street, and Hasbrouck avenue between Mill and Murray streets.

Library Light.

The board decided to renew the ornamental light in front of the Kingston City Library on Broadway.

Gavel For Mayor.

Before the meeting was called to order it might be added that Commissioner Burgevin presented Mayor Canfield with a gavel grown at the Burgevin hot houses.

Bridge in Wilbur.

The board decided to have a concrete bridge built across the Twaalfskill brook in Wilbur. The present wooden structure is in dangerous condition.

Albany Avenue Improvement.

Mr. Reed of the Willite Company was present at the meeting and quoted prices on Willite, a new paving material, and stated that when the pavement was laid it "would last twenty years."

The board after some discussion decided to have the new pavement laid on Albany avenue as far as Fox hall avenue, a depth of two inches. The price quoted in 75 cents a square yard. This includes the cost of building it. The concern brings its own force to Kingston and does all the work.

Has Lasted 3 Years.

He called attention to the fact that the pavement laid in Long Island had been down three years and showed no sign of wear and saw no reason why the pavement of Kingston streets it would not last twenty years.

The concern was willing to allow the board to retain a third of the cost of the work for five years to see whether the job would stand up.

On Railroad Avenue.

The board also decided to lay this new material on Railroad avenue. The work will be started by the Willite people about the first of June.

Routine Matters.

The board also discussed a number of routine matters before an adjournment was taken.

CORPORAL POND AND SKILLYPOT

Got Drunk While Waiting to Board That Famous Craft—Turned Over to His Commanding Officer Today.

Corporal Alfred Pond of Company E, 71st Regiment, was picked up on Hasbrouck avenue, near the Skillypot landing, by Officer James V. Connolly who found him helplessly drunk. This morning the corporal was arraigned before Recorder Lang.

From what he could remember of the affair Corporal Pond was of the impression that he had come to Rondout and while waiting to cross the creek to Sileighsburg he went in a saloon and had a whiskey. When he came out the famous Skillypot had started from Rondout and was breasting the waves of the creek and headed toward the Esopus shore. The corporal then returned to the saloon for refreshment and when he came out he had again missed the Skillypot. This happened at least five times and after that he forgot.

Recorder Lang was about to sentence Pond to jail when Captain Delaney in charge of Company E entered the court room and asked that Pond be turned over to him to be dealt with according to military law. Recorder Lang said he was tired of having soldiers disgracing the uniform by getting drunk in the city and Captain Delaney agreed with him. Pond will be court martialled.

The fact that one or two of the soldiers get drunk while in uniform casts reflection upon the entire service, the great majority of the soldier boys being decent chaps, well-behaved, the 71st having made a record for good behavior and courtesy.

STOCKYARDS GIVE FRENCH A WELCOME

Chicago. Crowds Greet Marshal Joffre and Other Members of War Commission—Great Parade Followed by Mass Meeting.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, May 5.—Chicago's public took Marshal Joffre, Rene Viviani and other members of the French war mission in charge today. The tumultuous applause with which official and social Chicago greeted the hero of the Marne yesterday faded into the background as tens of thousands thundered their respects today.

Starting at ten o'clock, when the distinguished Frenchmen first made their appearance at the Art Institute, Chicago was one prolonged cheer. A great crowd greeted the visitors as they entered the institute and it had multiplied many times by the time they had emerged after inspecting the art treasures of the west.

A parade through the "Loop" district followed. Michigan avenue, State street and Jackson Boulevard were lined with thousands. The blended tri-colors of the two republics were flung aloft from most of the buildings along the line of march.

Following the parade, the members of the party were guests of the University of Chicago at luncheon, presided over by Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, its president.

The high light of the visit came in mid-afternoon when a public mass-meeting was held in the huge stockyards pavilion on the South Side. Thousands were in the great enclosure, Poles, Russians, Lithuanians, Italians, Slovaks and other races that go to make up Chicago's great south side packing industry.

Restrictions on Power of Kaiser.

Significant Change in German Constitution Enacted by Reichstag—Check Also Placed on Chancellor.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, May 5.—The power of the German Kaiser is to be curbed. A dispatch from Amsterdam today said that the constitutional committee of the Reichstag has decided to alter Article XVII of the German Constitution relating to ordinances and decrees.

In the future the Kaiser's decrees will be issued in the name of the empire and will require the counter signature of the chancellor or his representative.

The chancellor thereby acquires responsibility to the Reichstag for his official acts. Hitherto he was responsible to the Kaiser only.

The Constitutional revision was brought about by the Progressives, National Liberals and Centrists. Some of the Conservatives voted against it.

Not only is the power of the Kaiser restricted but a check is also put on the authority of the chancellor. For some time there has been agitation in favor of limiting the great power of the chancellor.

A REGISTRATION DAY IS FEDERAL PLAN OF ACTION

President Wilson to Proclaim Date for Enrollment of All Men Eligible for Military Service—Official Outline of What is Expected of Officials and People.

"(From the War Department which asks that every newspaper in the country print the article in full and thereafter stimulate interest and publicity therein. The department will regard this service as the performance of a patriotic duty.)"

There was a time in the country's history when military enlistments, backed by bayonets, went out among the people to take a compulsory service census. Today under the principle of universal liability to service the execution of the law is put into the hands of the people.

The approval of the new national army bill and the president's proclamation thereunder will be coincident. All persons within the age limits prescribed will be required to present themselves for registration at the customary voting places in the voting precincts in which they have their permanent homes, on a day which the president will announce. The probability is, that from ten to fifteen days will elapse between the approval of the bill and registration day.

The governor of each state will be the chief of registration therein. The machinery of registration in each county is to be in charge of the sheriff, the county clerk, and the county physician, acting ex officio, unless a different board shall be announced by the governor. In cities containing populations of more than 30,000, the registration will be under control of the mayor and selected boards of registration. In order that the designated county and city officials, and the people generally, can get a clear understanding of the census methods, the following brief outline is given.

Appointment of Registrars.

The proportion of registrars shall be one for each 170 persons to be registered. Each age to be registered will comprise about 1 per cent of the population.

If, for instance, all men between 19 and 25 years of age, inclusive, are to be registered, the registrar would have to enroll about 7 per cent of the precinct population.

It is desirable to accept the services of competent volunteer registrars to serve without compensation. All registrars must be sworn in. The voting place in each precinct must be prepared for registration. Full printed instructions covering every detail of registration will be in the hands of sheriffs and mayors on the fifth day after the president's proclamation.

Duties of County Clerks.

On the fifth day after the president has issued his proclamation, clerks of counties, and cities of over 30,000, must secure a supply of blanks and copies of the registration regulations from the sheriff or from the mayor. Absentees and the sick will apply to such clerks to have their registration cards filled out. In no case shall such persons be given registration certificates. They are to be instructed by the clerk that the burden is on them to see to it that the cards reach the registrars of their home precincts by registration day.

Absentees and the Sick.

Persons absent from their home counties may be registered by mail. If so absent, a man should go to the clerk of the county where he may be staying, on the sixth day after the date of the president's proclamation; if he is in a city of over 30,000 population, the city clerk is the official to whom to apply. The absentee will be told how to register, but he must mail his card in time to reach his precinct by registration day.

Persons too sick to present themselves for registration must send a competent person to the county or city clerk on the sixth day after the issuing of the proclamation. The clerk will give instructions for registration.

Colleges and Institutions.

Officials of educational, charitable and other institutions should apply for instructions to the county or city clerk on the sixth day after the date of the proclamation for instructions as to a convenient method of registration.

The wardens of jails, penitentiaries and reformatories should apply to the county or city clerk for instructions on the sixth day.

Five days after the date of the president's proclamation complete regulations will be in the hands of all sheriffs and of the officials of cities of over 30,000 population.

The president is authorized to call upon all public officers to assist in the execution of the law. The plan is, however, to rely on the people for the proper execution of the law. It is expected that patriotic citizens will offer their services free as registrars. Such services will be gratefully acknowledged. Volunteers for this service should communicate immediately with the proper official.

Borne, May 3.—Reports that Turkey may make a separate peace were strengthened today by a despatch from an unnamed city on the frontier saying that Talat Pasha, grand vizier of Turkey, has announced in Vienna that Turkey's peace terms have been communicated to President Wilson. According to the despatch, the wording of which was vague, the grand vizier made the announcement in an interview in an Austrian newspaper.

Washington, May 3.—The local chapter of the D. A. R. has demanded that the department of justice prosecute all manufacturers of women's stockings who decorate them with American flags. A motion picture was shown at the local theatre last night and the audience was told that the picture was a patriotic one and that it was a good thing to see the American flag on the screen.

Exposure of Censorship.

"Within the scope of its powers, this commission will continue to exert every influence to avert the threatened recurrence of the conditions obtaining in the winter of 1916-1917. The commission will expose any unscrupulous wholesaler, jobber or retailer who seeks to mislead the public into a belief that exorbitant prices are justifiable or that there is any necessity to join in a frenzied bidding to secure immediate delivery for future needs."

"The commission will ask the co-operation of the patriotic newspapers of the country to the end that the public may be kept constantly informed of what, in justice and reason, it should be expected to pay for anthracite and as to the volume of the production and stocks on hand existing at such times. The commission has assurances from the anthracite operators that in case of local shortages being called to their attention by the commission the operators will relieve such local stringencies immediately."

The report concluded:
"The fair retail price is that at the mouth of the mine, plus the cost of freight, and the reasonable charge to the consumer by the retailer. The May price of ordinary white anthracite, allowing for the forty per cent discount, follows:
"Egg, gross ton, (2,240 lbs) $4.95; net ton, (2,000 lbs) $3.61. Store, gross ton, $4.30; net, $3.24. Chest, gross ton, $4.40; net ton, $3.93."

STREET EMPLOYEES HAVE PAY RAISED

B. P. W. Boosts Street Force 25 Cents a Day—Hasbrouck Avenue Hill to be Paved—"Whitite" to Be Laid on Albany and Railroad Avenues—Other Matters.

Boosting the pay of the members of the street department twenty-five cents a day; deciding to lay "Whitite," a new paving material, which its manufacturer states "will last for twenty years after it is laid" on Albany and Railroad avenues, paving Hasbrouck avenue hill, and the building of a concrete bridge in Wilbur over the Twaitskill brook were the more important matters taken up at a busy session of the board of public works held on Friday afternoon at the city hall with Mayor Canfield presiding and Commissioners Burgevin, Tamm, and Staples present. Alderman Fischer of Seventh ward, also wanted a board walk laid but neglected to state on what street in his ward it was to be built.

A H. Chambers of the Stayman Garage on Clinton avenue, wrote asking permission to lay a 1,000 gallon tank in front of the garage. The request was referred to the street superintendent and city engineer with power. The same action was taken in regard to the request of J. Johnson to install a metal awning roof in front of his garage on Washington avenue.

What About Hazel?

The New York Central wrote asking what had been done in regard to eliminating the Canfield street crossing. It was referred to the city engineer to establish a grade on the new street and that Superintendent Van Keuren go ahead and build the street. As told in these columns before the grade crossing is eliminated by cutting through a new street which the common council has named Hazel street in honor of Alderman Schick's daughter. This new street will now be built.

Can't Flow Water.

August Albricht wrote that water overflowed the lot at the corner of Havine and German streets, and that he would like the board to take some action in the matter as he was anxious to plant the ground. Referred to the city engineer and street superintendent with power.

All Are Happy.

After some discussion the board unanimously decided to increase the pay of all members of the street department twenty-five cents a day. The increase to take effect with the payroll of May 1 to May 15. This means that all of the city force with the exception of Superintendent Van Keuren who receives a salary will get a much needed boost. The pay for laborers has been $2 a day and will now be $2.25. Others who may have got more per day will also receive the increase.

Some time ago Alderman Fischer of the Seventh ward had the city fathers pass a resolution to "lay a board walk from Racine street to Wilbur avenue." This resolution was sent to the board of public works last month, but was laid on the table. It was taken up at the meeting Friday.

But Where Oh Where.

A close study of the resolution prepared by Alderman Fischer reveals the fact that the alderman was evidently undecided what street he wanted his board walk laid as a careful reading of the resolution will show.

A glance on the map shows that Racine street is over a mile from Wilbur avenue and does not connect with the avenue at any point or section. It was hardly likely that Alderman Fischer wanted the board walk laid over the hills and valleys lying between the two streets.

Maybe He Meant Abel Street.
The board after hearing Alderman Fischer's resolution read decided that the alderman must want the board walk laid on Abel street between Racine street and Wilbur avenue. This meant a distance of about one mile and a half.
The resolution was referred to city

CORPORAL POND AND SKILLYPOT

Got Drunk While Waiting to Board that Famous Craft—Turned Over to His Commanding Officer Today.

Corporal Alfred Pond of Company B, 71st Regiment, was picked up on Hasbrouck avenue, near the Skillypot landing, by Officer James V. Connelly who found him helplessly drunk. This morning the corporal was arraigned before Recorder Lang. From what he could remember of the affair Corporal Pond was of the impression that he had come to Hasbrouck and while waiting to cross the creek to Sleightburgh he went in a saloon and had a whiskey. When he came out the famous Skillypot had started from Rondout and was breasting the waves of the creek and headed toward the Esopus shore. The corporal then returned to the saloon for refreshment and when he came out he had again drunk at least five times and after that he forgot.

Recorder Lang was about to sentence Pond to jail when Captain Delaney in charge of Company B entered the court room and asked that Pond be turned over to him to be dealt with according to military law. Recorder Lang said he was tired of having soldiers disgracing the uniform by getting drunk in the city and Captain Delaney agreed with him. Pond will be court-martialed.

The fact that one or two of the soldiers got drunk while in uniform even in the city, is a disgrace to the great majority of the soldiers who are doing their duty and behaving for good behavior and decency.

Bridge in Wilbur.

The board decided to have a concrete bridge built across the Twaitskill brook in Wilbur. The present wooden structure is in dangerous condition.

Albany Avenue Improvement.

Mr. Reed of the White Company was present at the meeting and quoted prices on Wilbur, a new paving material, and stated that when the pavement was laid it "would last twenty years."

The board after some discussion decided to have the new pavement laid on Albany avenue as far as Foxhall avenue, a depth of two inches. The price quoted is 75 cents a square yard. This includes the cost of building it. The concern brings its own force to Kingston and does all the work.

Has Lasted 3 Years.

He called attention to the fact that the pavement laid in Long Island had been down three years and showed no sign of wear and saw no reason if when laid on Kingston streets it would not last twenty years.

The concern was willing to allow the board to retain a third of the cost of the work for five years to see whether the job would stand up.

On Railroad Avenue.

The board also decided to lay this new material on Railroad avenue. The work will be started by the White people about the first of June.

Route Matters.

The board also discussed a number of routing matters before an adjournment was taken.

STOCKYARDS GIVE FRENCH A WELCOME

Chicago Crows Greet Marshal Joffre and Other Members of War Commission—Great Parade Followed by Mass Meeting.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, May 3.—Chicago's public look Marshal Joffre, Rene Viviani and other members of the French war mission in charge today. The tumultuous applause with which official and social Chicago greeted the hero of the Marne yesterday faded into the background as tens of thousands thundered their respects today.

Starting at ten o'clock, when the distinguished Frenchmen first made their appearance at the Art Institute, Chicago was one prolonged cheer. A great crowd greeted the visitors as they entered the institute and it had multiplied many times by the time they had emerged after inspecting the art treasures of the west.

A parade through the "Loop" district followed. Michigan avenue, State street and Jackson Boulevard were lined with thousands. The blended tri-colors of the two republics were flung aloft from most of the buildings along the line of march.

Following the parade, the members of the party were guests of the University of Chicago at luncheon, presided over by Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, its president.

The high light of the visit came in mid-afternoon when a public massing was held in the huge stockyards pavilion on the South Side. Thousands were in the great enclosure, Poles, Russians, Lithuanians, Italians, Slovaks and other races that go to make up Chicago's great south side packing industry.

Significant Change in German Constitution Enacted by Reichstag—Check Also Placed on Chancellor.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, May 3.—The power of the German Kaiser is to be curbed. A dispatch from Amsterdam today said that the constitutional committee of the Reichstag has decided to alter Article XVII of the German Constitution relating to ordinances and decrees.

In the future the Kaiser's decrees will be issued in the name of the empire and will require the counter signature of the chancellor or his representative.

The chancellor thereby acquires responsibility to the Reichstag for his official acts. Hitherto he was responsible to the Kaiser only. The constitutional revision was brought about by the Progressives, National Liberals and Conservatives. Some of the Conservatives voted against it.

Not only is the power of the Kaiser restricted but a check is also put on the authority of the chancellor. For some time there has been agitation in favor of limiting the great power of the chancellor.

A REGISTRATION DAY IS FEDERAL PLAN OF ACTION

President Wilson to Proclaim Date for Enrollment of All Men Eligible for Military Service—Official Outline of What Is Expected of Officials and People.

"(From the War Department which asks that every newspaper in the country print the article in full and thereafter stimulate interest and publicity therein. The department will regard this service as the performance of a patriotic duty.)"

There was a time in the country's history when military enumerators, backed by bayonets, went out among the people to take a compulsory service census. Today under the principle of universal liability to service the execution of the law is put into the hands of the people.

The approval of the new national army bill and the president's proclamation thereunder will be completed. All persons within the age limits prescribed will be required to present themselves for registration at the customary voting places in the voting precincts in which they have their permanent homes, on a day which the president will announce. The probability is, that from ten to fifteen days will elapse between the approval of the bill and registration day.

The governor of each state will be the chief of registration therein. The machinery of registration in each county is to be in charge of the sheriff, the county clerk, and the county physician, acting ex officio, unless a different board shall be announced by the governor. In cities containing populations of more than 30,000, the registration will be under control of the mayor and selected board of registration. In order that the designated county and city officials, and the people generally, can get a clear understanding of the census methods the following brief outline is given.

The sheriffs or other designated officials, immediately upon receiving notice from the governor, shall appoint registrars for each voting precinct.

Apportionment of Registrars.

The proportion of registrars shall be one for each 170 persons to be registered. Each age to be registered will comprise about 1 per cent of the population.

It is desirable to accept the services of competent volunteer registrars to serve without compensation. All registrars must be sworn.

The voting place in each precinct must be prepared for registration. Full printed instructions covering every detail of registration will be in the hands of sheriffs and mayors on the fifth day after the president's proclamation.

Duties of County Clerks.

On the fifth day after the president has issued his proclamation, clerks of counties, and cities of over 30,000, must secure a supply of blanks and copies of the registration regulations from the sheriff or from the mayor. Absentees and the sick will apply to such clerks to have their registration cards filled out. In no case shall such persons be given registration certificates. They are to be instructed by the clerk that the burden is on them to see to it that the cards reach the registrars of their home precincts by registration day.

Absentees and the Sick.

Persons absent from their home counties may be registered by mail. If so absent, a man should go to the clerk of the county where he may be staying, on the sixth day after the date of the president's proclamation. If he is in a city of over 30,000 population, the city clerk is the official to whom to apply. The absentee will be told how to register, but he must mail his card in time to reach his precinct by registration day.

Persons too sick to present themselves for registration must send a competent person to the county or city clerk on the sixth day after the issuing of the proclamation. The clerk will give instructions for registration.

Colleges and Institutions.

Officials of educational, charitable and other institutions should apply for instructions to the county or city clerk on the sixth day after the date of the proclamation for instructions as to a convenient method of registration.

The wardens of jails, reformatories and reformatories should apply to the county or city clerk for instructions on the sixth day.

Five days after the date of the president's proclamation, the registration will be in the hands of all sheriffs and of the officials of cities of over 30,000 population. The president is authorized to call upon all public officers to assist in the execution of the law. The plan is, however, to rely on the people for the proper execution of the law. It is expected that patriotic citizens will offer their services free as registrars. Such services will be gratefully acknowledged. Volunteers for this service should communicate immediately with the proper official.

STUDENTS DAILY OBSERVE MAY DAY

Chill Weather Drives May Queen and Her Court Indoors, Where Delightful Program of Dancing and Music Wins Enthusiastic Applause.

In a sylvan setting of evergreens and flowers the May day exercises at the high school Friday morning were held in the auditorium, cold weather preventing the dancing, which occupied a large part of the program, from being held on the lawn in front of the school. However, the true representation of outdoor scenery, the charming maidens garlanded with roses and greens, and the gay, blithesome dancing of girls gave as true an atmosphere as if they were held in the open. Beside the eight maidens there were about six hundred parents and outsiders in the hall, which was taxed to its full capacity, many being turned away.

The school was called to assembly at 10 o'clock. With Miss Paulding conducting, a number of songs were sung by the audience until the May party was ready. First, "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung and then "A Spring Song," by Clio Pisuati, "I'm a Shepherd of the Valley," "The World is Full of Beauty," "The Boat Song," "Love's Old Sweet Song," all of which were accompanied by the school orchestra, with Miriam Pitts at the piano.

May Party Enters.

Then, the orchestra playing a slow march, the procession of the May Queen's party began, starting from one of the doors leading to the wings of the stage and circling the auditorium. Faith Safford, the Queen of the May, was preceded by Edward Boyle and John Pails, bearing a senior class banner, Prime Minister Ernest Gleason, the sceptre, and crown bearers, Mildred Healey and Hope Powell, respectively. Clothed in pure white, her luxuriant blonde hair gracefully falling over her shoulders, with a garland of roses clinging to her hair and bouquet in arm Miss Safford was as charming as ever a fairy queen could be. Her long-flowing train was carried by the four pages, little tots, John and Frank Thompson, with black velvet vest and trousers, and Doris Bartlett and Grace Berry, in white. Then followed the eight fair attendants to the queen, all senior girls, similarly garbed in white with garlands of roses in hair and bouquet of carnations in their arms. They walked in pairs in the following order: Ruth Deane, Esther Rodie, Marguerite Quick, Ruth Terwilliger, Anna Roach, Marion Way, Josephine Schmidt and Lillian Eckert. Following these girls came the dancers, dressed in various colors.

After the queen had ascended her throne with the prime minister at her side and attendants extended along the steps, the prime minister announced the coming of spring and its shading off of the shackles of winter, and placed the crown of roses on the queen, who spoke to the same effect as the prime minister. Happy in the knowledge that once more spring was smiling, but unfortunately on a war-torn world. The prime minister then announced the various dances.

The first one was a graceful solo dance by Helen Dwyer, "The Dance of the Orchids." She wore a dress of purple.

Eight girls next gave a "Butterfly Dance." This was a clever presentation, the girls dancing in pairs, the four couples being clothed in different tints, pink, yellow, purple and pale blue. As the butterflies passed one another fluttering their "wings" the color blending was very pretty. The dancers were Kathryn Kearney, Helen Dwyer, Helen McNeill, Charlotte Kennedy, Kathryn McDermott, Margaret Scanlon, Anna Griffin and Edna Horton.

The duet dance of Helen and Angelus Cashion, the former a daughter of John J. Cashion and the latter, who scored the hit of the program, Helen in pink was dainty white Angelus in black velvet, impersonated a boy, as stately as any grown-up dancer could be. They were encircled and bowed in thanks.

Kathryn Kearney then skipped blithely on the stage for "The Song of the Robin," a dance which every bit reproduced the cheery life of the harbinger of spring. She was dressed in yellow and bore a streamer of roses across the front of her dress.

bearing the colors of Kingston and Ulster Academies for those of the high school, Miss Dwyer's new attire being maroon while her partner's was white. This number received much applause.

Charlotte Kennedy next very effectively gave a "Song of Spring" by the gay and care-free movements of her graceful solo dance. Her dress of white bore an abundance of lilacs of the valley scattered in green leaves.

Margery Richards, in a dress of robin's egg blue over scarlet and with little bells on her wrists which kept rhythm with the music of her accompanist, then gave a very pretty dance, which brought the dancing to a close.

History in the Making.

The curtain was drawn to and when it was again opened were seen a soldier lad and farmer boy, each with an appropriate weapon over his shoulder, back to back before a sign bearing two arms, which pointed in opposite directions and bearing the timely advice: "To Arms; to Farms." Rufus Van Aken was the former while Edward Relyea, in Company M uniform, was the boy in khaki. In the next of this series of pantomimes Atlas, staggering under his heavy load of the world, was approached by Hunger, a walking skeleton clothed in black, her lean arms showing eloquently. As her goal was almost reached, she was frustrated in the attempt by Uncle Sam and his troop of farmers who approached at the sound of the bugle and drove away the stranger. Atlas was Felix Katz; Hunger, Ernest Kelder; Uncle Sam, Harold Garrison; and the farmers Oscar Elman, John Corbett, Harold Johnson, John Dwyer, Reginald Case and Ernest Palen.

An Inspiring Picture.

When the curtain next unfolded an inspiring picture was that of Liberty, Olga Owens, flanked on the left by Britannia, Lucinda Rich, and on the right by La Belle France leaning on a sword. At a signal the audience again sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Next was the awarding of a rose by the May Queen to the athletes of the school who had won their letters on the various teams. Each lucky one was heartily applauded. The following were called: Basketball team—Edward Boyle, manager; John Joyce, captain; Edward Relyea, Harold Johnson, William Wilson, Chester Dolson, Joseph Hallinan and James Kierman.

The midnet basketball team—John Schoonmaker, manager; Edward Kierman, captain; William Quick, William Smith, Roger Martin John Nickerson, John McAndrew.

Maypole Wound on Lawn.

Space on the stage not permitting the May pole dance was given outside on the lawn by twelve girls from the Freshman Class. This dance was witnessed by fully two thousand people, the high school green being surrounded and many people watching from the city hall green. This was the last number of the exercises. The dancers were: Marion Leighton, Margaret Scanlon, Nancy Juddins, Kathryn Barry, Florence Joyce, Kathryn McDermott, Anna Gallagher, Kathryn Gallagher, Olive Marsh, Ruth Scott, Francis Harder and Nan Rodie.

Miss Seigle was in charge of instructing the dancers of the group dances. The committee of seniors who assembled the program was as follows: Joe Jacobson, chairman; Harold Garrison, Hyman Weisberg, Ella Lappine, Anna Roach, and Esther Rodie, Miss Noone had charge of the pantomimes.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY.

Put any piece of veal in a stewpan with just enough boiling water to cover it. Season with parsley, celery and leeks tied together, the peel of one lemon and one large carrot cut in dice. Boil for an hour, season with salt, then let simmer until the veal is tender; take it out and lay it in a roasting pan. Strain the broth; there should be two quarts. Put a half cupful of butter in a frying pan; in this brown two tablespoonfuls of flour, then add the hot broth and stir until smooth and creamy. Pour this over the roast and put into the oven to brown.

Stewed Lettuce.—This is a dish which will use the broken or unsightly leaves of lettuce and give the family an economical green. Cook the well-washed leaves until tender, drain, then put into a stewpan with thin slices of salt pork and a cupful of veal or chicken broth. Cook gently for an hour. Drain in a sieve, slightly thicken the sauce and pour it over the lettuce when ready to serve.

German Carrots.—Cut four small carrots into shoestring shreds. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan with a small onion finely chopped and cook until tender, then add the well-drained carrots, a teaspoonful of sugar, and let them simmer tightly covered. Do not let them scorch; add a little lemon juice and a sprinkling of parsley when ready to serve. Cream instead of lemon juice may be added for variety. Cooked peas may be added to the dish also, giving it variety. A heavy strip, into which is stirred two or three tablespoonfuls of pineapple finely shredded, may be used as a sauce with cherry jelly, if no cream is at hand.

Chocolate and Chequerberry Pudding.—Heat a pint of milk with a square of grated chocolate; mix half a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of flour, the yolk of an egg and a pinch of salt, with the milk to make smooth; add to the boiling milk and cook until thick. Beat the white of the egg to a stiff froth, add one tablespoonful of sugar and a half teaspoonful of chequerberry essence. Put spoonfuls of this in a pudding dish and pour the cream around it.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

What are the advantages and disadvantages of the left hand drive?

The advantages advanced for left hand drives are as follows:

A.—In passing other vehicles the driver is on the proper side to observe how close he is to the passing vehicle. In passing vehicles going in the same direction he is on the proper side to observe whether or not there is a clear passage.

B.—In making turns the driver of a left hand driven car is on the high side of the road and nearest the center.

C.—In drawing up to a curb the driver is on the outside, permitting ingress and egress on the right side, not necessitating the occupants of the front seat getting out and in on the left side and walking through the mud.

D.—In drawing away from a curb the driver is in a position to observe the cars which may be passing if on the left side.

E.—With the driver on the left side the control levers may be placed in the center of the car and yet be convenient for right hand manipulation.

But there is another side to this question, as there is to any question. The advocates of right hand drive advance the following points:

A.—In passing to the right of another vehicle, especially in a country road, the driver of a right hand driven car is in a position to see how close to the ditch he may allow himself to approach. In passing to the left the driver is closest to the car he is passing.

B.—In turning to the right the driver, if on the right side of the car, is able to see how close he is coming to the curb.

C.—In drawing up to the curb the driver is closer to the curb on the right and therefore can observe how close he is to it. He also can open the tonneau door from this side, while in the left hand drive arrangement for the passengers must open the door themselves, or the driver must climb out to open it for them.

D.—In starting the motor the wheel may be reached, when on the right side, after cranking to throttle the engine down in the minimum of time and without going out in the mud.

Kindly give your opinion as to the value of benzine to be substituted for gasoline. Is it dangerous to use, and will it injure the motor more than gasoline.

Benzine is a richer fuel than gasoline, and if properly carburated, is said to give more power. It starts easily in summer, although not as easily as gasoline. In winter it is advisable to use gasoline. Benzine is not as volatile as gasoline; but, owing to the greater number of heat units it contains, it will develop more power. It does not evaporate as readily as gasoline. There should be no danger from using it if handled judiciously.

A disadvantage incidental to its use has been that owing to it being richer in carbon than gasoline it would deposit more of this substance on the piston head and interior of the combustion chamber. While this may be true of a poorly refined benzine and when the mixture proportions are not correct, it applies equally well when low grades of gasoline are used and when the mixture of gasoline vapor and air supplied the cylinders is too rich.

What proportion of length of connecting rod to length of stroke is good practice in long stroke engines?

About two to one.

Is it possible to have too much crank case compression, and what is the cause?

In a properly designed four cycle engine there should not be any crank case compression. That is what the breather is for—to relieve any compression that might result from expansion of the air in the crank case due to the heating up of the engine.

Can you tell me why a two cycle motor backfires in the carburetor?

The reason that a two cycle motor gives this trouble is that the intake and exhaust valves open and close at the same time, the theory being that the incoming charge of fresh gas blows the burnt gas out of the combustion chamber. However, at certain motor speeds the combustion of the charge is not entirely complete when the intake valve opens, with the result that the incoming charge of fresh gas is prematurely ignited and fires back into the carburetor. Usually a two cycle motor runs smoothly at one or two rates of speed, but is prone to backfire at all other speeds, especially when the motor is accelerated or retarded.

When going up a grade slowly on high my engine makes a dull, thumping sound. The carburetor is set low, requiring a long manifold. Do you think this sound is due to condensation in the manifold? I was told that the trouble might be remedied by having a new exhaust manifold made divided, a separate exhaust for each pair of cylinders, for the trouble might be that the explosions overlap and the engine is scavenged properly.

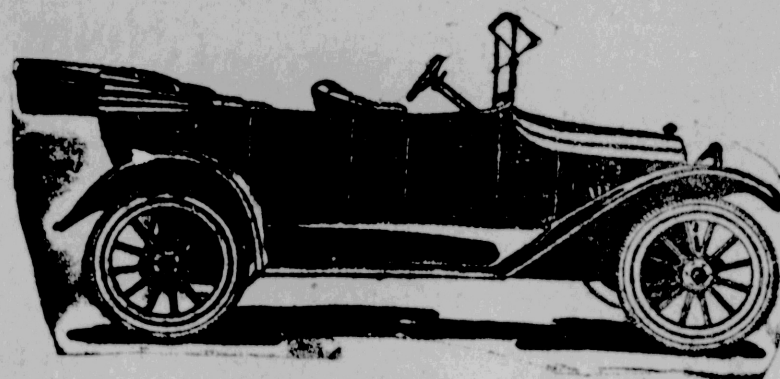

The knock is either a spark knock or a gas knock. If it is a spark knock you should retard the ignition some.

And Heroes Are So Few.

Often the boy who needs a hero to follow is the one who may be the worst fellow in the community if the need be supplied. For a boy must have his hero—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

No Use For Them.

Richard, aged four, accompanied by his mother, was watching a regiment of soldiers, headed by its band, marching by. "Mamma," he asked, "what's the use of all them soldiers that don't make music?"

STUDENTS DAILY OBSERVE MAY DAY

Chill Weather Drives May Queen and Her Court Indoors, Where Delightful Program of Dancing and Music Wins Enthusiastic Applause.

In a civilian setting of evergreens and flowers the May day exercises at the high school Friday morning were held in the auditorium, cold weather preventing the dancing, which occupied a large part of the program, from being held on the lawn in front of the school. However, the true representation of outdoor scenery, the charming maidens garlanded with roses and greens, and the gay, blithesome dancing of girls gave as true an atmosphere as if they were held in the open. Beside the eight hundred pupils there were about six hundred parents and outsiders in the hall, which was taxed to its full capacity, many being turned away.

The school was called to assembly at 9 o'clock. With Miss Paulding conducting, a number of songs were sung by the audience until the May party was ready. First, "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung and then "A Spring Song" by Otto Pinski, "I'm a Shepherd of the Valley," "The World is Full of Beauty," "The Boat Song," "Love's Old Sweet Song," all of which were accompanied by the school orchestra, with Miriam Pitts at the piano.

bearing the colors of Kingston and Ulster Academies for those of the high school, Miss Dwyer's new attire being maroon while her partner's was white. This number received much applause.

Charlotte Kennedy next very effectively gave a "Song of Spring" by the gay and care-free movements of her graceful solo dance. Her dress of white bore an abundance of lilies of the valley scattered in green leaves.

Margery Richards, in a dress of robin's egg blue over scarlet and with little bells on her wrists which kept rhythm with the music of her accompaniment, then gave a very pretty dance, which brought the dancing to a close.

History in the Making.

The curtain was drawn to and when it was again opened were seen a soldier and a farmer boy, each with an appropriate weapon over his shoulder, back to back before a sign, bearing two arms, which pointed in opposite directions and bearing the timely advice: "To Arms; to Farms."

Titus Van Aken was the former while Edward Reiley, in Company A uniform, was the boy in khaki.

In the next of this series of pantomimes Atlas, staggering under his heavy load of the world, was approached by Hunger, a walking skeleton clothed in black, her lean arms showing eloquently. As her goal was almost reached, she was frustrated in the attempt by Uncle Sam and his troop of farmers, who approached at the sound of the bugle and drove away the stranger. Atlas was Felix Katz; Hunger, Ernest Kulder; Uncle Sam, Harold Garrison; and the farmers Oscar Bliman, John Cordis, Harold Johnson, John Dwyer, Reginald Case and Ernest Palen.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY.

Put any piece of veal in a stewpan with just enough boiling water to cover it. Season with parsley, celery and lettuce tied to gether, the peel of one lemon and one large carrot cut in dice. Boil for an hour, season with salt, then let simmer until the veal is tender; take it out and lay it in a roasting pan. Strain the broth; there should be two quarts. Put a half-cupful of butter in a frying pan; in this brown two tablespoonsful of flour, then add the hot broth and stir until smooth and creamy. Four this over the roast and put into the oven to brown.

Stewed Lettuce.—This is a dish which will use the broken or unsightly leaves of lettuce and give the family an economical green. Cook the well-washed leaves until tender, drain, then put into a stewpan with thin slices of salt pork and a cupful of veal or chicken broth. Cook gently for an hour. Drain in a sieve, slightly thickening the sauce and pour it over the lettuce when ready to serve.

German Carrots.—Cut four small carrots into shoestring shreds. Put two tablespoonsful of butter into a saucepan with a small onion finely chopped and cook until tender, then add the well-drained carrots, a teaspoonful of sugar, and let them simmer tightly covered. Do not let them scorch; add a little lemon juice and a sprinkling of parsley when ready to serve. Cream instead of lemon juice may be added for variety. Cooked peas may be added to the dish also, giving it variety. A heavy shred, into which is stirred two or three tablespoonsful of pineapple finely shredded, may be used as a sauce with cherry jelly, if no cream is at hand.

Chocolate and Cheesecake Pudding.—Heat a pint of milk with a square of grated chocolate; mix half a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonsful of flour, the yolk of an egg and a pinch of salt, with the milk to make smooth; add to the boiling milk and cook until thick. Beat the white of the egg to a stiff froth, add one tablespoonful of sugar and a half teaspoonful of cheesecake essence. Put spoonfuls of this in a pudding dish and pour the cream around it.

WATERBURY KINGSTON, N. Y.

May Party Butters.

Then, the orchestra playing a slow march, the procession of the May Queen's party began, starting from one of the doors leading to the wings of the stage and circling the auditorium. Faith Safford, the Queen of the May, was preceded by Edward Horne and John Balle, both using a senior class banner, Prime Minister Ernest Glenison, the scepter, and crown bearers, Mildred Healey and Hope Powell, respectively. Clothed in pure white, her luxuriant blonde hair gracefully falling over her shoulders, with a garland of roses clinging to her hair and bouquet in arm Miss Safford was as charming as ever a fairy queen could be. Her long-flowing train was carried by the four pages, little boys, John and Frank Thompson, with black velvet vest and trousers, and Doris Bartlett and Grace Dorrington, in white. Then followed the eight fair attendants to the queen, all senior girls, similarly garbed in white with garlands of roses in their arms. They walked in pairs in the following order: Ruth Deegan, Leah Rodie, Marguerite Quick, Leah Terwilliger, Anna Roach, Marion Way, Josephine Schmidt and Lillian Kerk. Following these girls came the dancers, dressed in various colors.

After the queen had ascended her throne with the prime minister at her side and attendants extended along the steps, the prime minister announced the coming of spring and his shining out of the shadows of winter, and placed the crown of roses on the queen, who spoke to the same effect as the prime minister, happy in the knowledge that once more spring was smiling, but unfortunately on a war-torn world. The prime minister then announced the various dances.

The first one was a graceful solo dance by Helen Dwyer, "The Dance of the Orchids." She wore a dress of purple.

Eight girls next gave a "Butterfly Dance." This was a clever presentation, the girls dancing in pairs, the four couples being clothed in different tints, pink, yellow, purple and pale blue. As the butterflies passed one another fluttering their "wings" the color blending was very pretty. The dancers were Kathryn Kearney, Helen Dwyer, Helen McNells, Charlotte Kennedy, Kathryn McDermott, Margaret Scanlon, Anna Griffin and Edna Horton.

The duet dance of Helen and Angelus Cashin, the former a daughter of John J. Cashin and the latter, a daughter of Edward R. Cashin, who scored the hit of the program, Helen in pink was dainty while Angelus in black velvet, impersonated a boy, as stately as any grown-up dancer could be. They were entered and bowed in thanks.

Kathryn Kearney then skipped blithely on the stage for "The Song of the Robin," a dance which every old reproduced the cheery life of the harbinger of spring. She was dressed in yellow and bore a streamer of roses across the front of her dress.

The next dance was a shottische by Helen McNells and Helen Dwyer. Miss McNells wore a dress of purple trimmed with gold and Miss Dwyer's dress was of orange bordered with black. As the dance progressed, they suddenly discarded the dresses

An Inspiring Picture.

When the curtain next unfolded an inspiring picture was that of Liberty, Oliver Owens, flanked on the left by Lillian, Lucinda Welch, and on the right by La Belle France leaning on a sword. Mary Lawrence, at a signal the audience again sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Next was the awarding of a rose by the May Queen to the athletes of the school who had won their letters on the various teams. Each lucky one was heartily applauded. The following were called: Basketball team—Edward Boyle, manager; John Joyce, captain; Edward Reiley, Harold Johnson, William Wilson, Chester Dolson, Joseph Hallinan and James Kierman.

The Midget basketball team—John Schoonmaker, manager; Edward Kirohner, captain; William Quick, William Smith, Roger Martin John Nickerson, John McAndrew.

The girls' varsity basketball team—Anna Casler, manager; Josephine Schmidt, captain; Anna Hurley, Irene Joslovitz, Helen Wood, Marion Bell, Mary Bruyn and Pauline Van Wageningen.

Maypole Wound on Lawn.

Space on the stage not permitting the May pole dance was given outside on the lawn by twelve girls from the Freshman Class. This dance was witnessed by fully two thousand people, the high school green being surrounded and many people watching from the city hall green. This was the last number of the exercises. The dancers were: Marion Leighton, Margaret Scanlon, Nancy Judkins, Kathryn Barry, Florence Joyce, Kathryn McDermott, Anna Gallagher, Kathryn Gallagher, Olive Marsh, Ruth Scott, Francis Hardor and Nan Rodie.

Miss Seigle was in charge of instructing the dancers of the group dances. The committee of seniors who assembled the program was as follows: Joe Jacobson, chairman; Harold Garrison, Hyman Weisberg, Elmer Lapple, Anna Roach, and Esther Rodie. Miss Noone had charge of the pantomimes.

MISGUIDED ECONOMY.

A month of overdone economy has convinced even its most urgent advocates that, whatever happens, the country must continue to do business, and that if the country does not continue to do business the people will have nothing to economize. Much sound advice against waste and in favor of extra production has been perverted into misguided effort leading toward stagnation. Some of the preachers of economy have rushed into the absurd extremes, such as the proposition that women dress only in khaki, a course that would destroy nearly every industry contributing toward the clothing and the pleasure of half the population. The program laid out for the men by some enthusiasts seems to consist merely of three things, farming, fighting and buying nothing.

Obviously it is best for all concerned, for the entire nation as well as success in the war, for life in general to go on as before, with a change only in extra production of all supplies, particularly food, and in the checking of waste, with a view to provide both plenty at home and a vast surplus for our allies in Europe. There are no reasons why those who can afford it should not and many reasons why they should continue to buy as freely as before not only of necessities but even of luxuries. If rich and poor alike should deny themselves everything but the bare necessities, millions would be thrown out of employment, the wheels of countless industries would cease to turn, business would practically stop and everybody, including the victims of misguided economy, would suffer greatly.

The country does not need lessened consumption but a greater production. It is desirable merely to stop needless waste while producing to the utmost in order that the allies who are fighting our battle may be provided for as well as ourselves. The prosperity of farmers, merchants, manufacturers, millions of employees, of the whole public indeed—for in one way or another we are all spokes in the innumerable wheels of commerce—depends upon a continuance of a normal demand for commodities and services of all sorts. A misguided economy tending to prevent this must soon defeat its own ends and create peril instead of securing safety.

A BRAVE EDITOR.

The story comes through Denmark that Maximilian Harden has published another daring article exposing the "shams, pretenses and mistakes" of the Kaiser's government. This time the free-tongued German editor discusses the entry of the United States into the war and warns the pretendedly contemptuous that it is a serious matter. Harden is represented as not only attacking the German policy at home and abroad but as praising President Wilson and justifying this country's attitude from the beginning. He points out that war was made inevitable by the unrestricted submarine campaign, as skeptical German statesmen might have foreseen if they had read President Wilson's series of notes more carefully, and he ridicules the notion that this is a country of mere dollar-chasers who will not fight.

This Maximilian Harden is the same man who was imprisoned six months for objecting when the Kaiser in 1900 ordered his Pekin-bound soldiers to give no quarter and make the Chinese remember the Germans, like Attila the Hun, for a thousand years. Why is this brave German editor not sent to prison now as he was seventeen years ago? The only reasonable explanation is that Germany's discontent and unrest are serious and that, since the revolution in Russia, the Kaiser has good cause to be afraid of inviting any considerable amount of popular displeasure by suppressing such a man as Harden.

If our Congress attempts to out-despot despotic Germany by establishing a press censorship here it will find that America also has editors who are not lacking in courage.

The hurry call for 1,000 wooden ships in which to rush food to our allies has met obstruction in the discovery that there is little available lumber of the properly seasoned kind and not enough ship carpenters to build one-fourth of the vessels in twice the proposed time. So it is proposed to build ships out of ordinary saw-mill lumber with relatively unskilled labor. Such a design has already been made and the report comes that it will serve the purpose. The method of propulsion, whether steam, gasoline or electric, is undetermined, and it is recommended that no particular kind of motive power be used exclusively, because it may be difficult to obtain 1,000 engines of a single type. It is to be hoped that this rushed work will be successful, for much depends on it. The difficulties that have confronted our allies after being taken by surprise and the problems now faced by the United States show that the Germans knew what they were about when they elected to prepare for forty years before starting out to conquer the world.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Does that new writer use a pseudonym in his work?" "No, he doesn't; he uses a typewriter."—Baltimore American.

"Well, old man, how are you getting along with your poultry raising? Making expenses?" "Not yet, but my hens have taken to eating their own eggs, so I hope that they will soon become self-supporting."—Boston Transcript.

"You must put your shoulder to the wheel," said the earnest citizen. "Glad to say," replied Mr. Chuggins, "I feel lucky if I don't have to crawl under a motor car and lie on my back to fix the works."—Washington Star.

Willis—"What is the total wealth of the United States?" Gillis—"To hear Mrs. Bump talk you would think it was a combination of what her father has got, what her husband gets, and what she is going to get when her rich uncle dies."—Judge.

"How would you answer the old question about the difference between a politician and a statesman?" "I should say," replied Senator Sordum, "that a politician tries to give people anything they want and a statesman tries to give them what they will approve of, after they've got it."—Washington Star.

Idea of Dad's.
When the poetic-looking pianist arrived at the little suburban villa he was surprised to notice in the hall and on the walls of all the rooms a large notice which read: "Learn to say yes." After he had started operations the young daughter of the family came in and entered into conversation with him. "By the way," he said, "I don't want to appear curious, but I should like to know the meaning of that notice which you have all around the house. It puzzles me." "O, that," said the ingenuous flapper, "that's just an idea of dad's. Dad's a business man and believes in business mottoes, and he likes things carried through in a businesslike way at home. He put it up for us girls. You see, there are 11 of us."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Worth $5.
"You say this is worth $5," said the wary customer. "Now, do you guarantee that I'm getting $5 worth of value for my money?" "Five dollars' worth of value!" flashed the bright young clerk. "Why, mister, for every one of them things we turn out there's four middlemen, 78 drummers, five banks, two railroad pools, 18 advertising agencies, seven lawyers and 842 billboards all running up expense accounts and adding value to that there article so fast that the company's practically giving you the 34 cents spent on patent royalties, shop upkeep, raw material and labor."—Puck.

Whiskers.

A man of rather unprepossessing appearance had been devoted to a Chicago girl for a long time and somehow had got the impression that she was willing to marry him. "What?" he exclaimed, when finally the situation was made absolutely plain to him. "You will not marry me?" "Impossible." "But you seemed to love me once. Your eyes brightened at my approach, and often when I sat silently gazing at you I am sure you were greatly agitated." "Yes, I know; but since you have cut off your side whiskers you don't look so much like my poor, dear, dead Fido."—Harper's Magazine.

BUFF FOWLS.

The three solid or self-colored types of domestic fowls are the White, Black and Buff. I have taken up the first two in previous articles, and will devote these few notes to the Buff breeds, equally popular with the Blacks, but much less so than the Whites.

The earliest buff chickens of which we have any record are the Buff Cochins. These heavily upholstered members of the well known Hen Family were introduced into this country from China ports by some sea captain who was in the China trade in the old days of the Yankee clipper ships. Tradition says that they were well and favorably known in China and Manchuria for centuries before and the pair which were brought to this country were saved from the pot only by chance. The breed achieved considerable popularity along the New England coast and would undoubtedly hold a very commanding position in the poultry world today were it not for their friends.

Early in the American history of the breed certain misguided Cochins fanciers conceived the idea that "if clothes make the man feathers make the chicken," and that was the beginning of the end for the unfortunate Buff Cochins. These enthusiasts so arranged the standard description of these fowls that it was necessary to produce a tremendous growth of feathers upon show specimens in order to win prizes, and the result was that the breed was changed in its character, the young ones took almost a year to mature to the laying age, laying ability was very seriously interfered with, and the utilitarian value of the breed for the farmer was entirely destroyed.

From this original buff breed came a great many of the valuable Buffs that we now have, however, so they have been of some service to the poultry keeping public. It is an undoubted fact that Cochins blood was used in the development of some strains of Buff Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks, Orpingtons, Games, Leghorns, and even the Rhode Island Red contains its quota of Cochins blood. The champions of many of these breeds will indignantly deny this imputation, but it can and has been proved in the case of each of the buff breeds named, and really it is nothing to be ashamed of.

Buff, as understood by the poultryman, is a solid old gold tone, which is to be aimed at but never quite reached. In reality most buff chickens are a wonderfully discouraging mixture of lemon, orange, red, black and white, these colors being so tangled up that the breeder despairs of ever getting them straightened out. The red shows on the shoulders and the hackles and saddle. The white comes in the wing and tail feathers and it is sometimes so bad that there is no hope of dyeing it or biting the white spots out so that the judge cannot detect it. The black comes in the wings most frequently, and its removal is often so impossible that the breeders have to arrange their standard description to make black flight feathers legal and desirable, in order to avoid having all of the birds disqualified.

Owing to that old Cochins blood the breeder of buff fowls has a fine time preventing his smooth legged breed from growing feathers on the legs. The Cochins has as many feathers on his legs and feet as a pigeon has in his wings, and they keep cropping out in any breed that possesses Cochins progenitors. Another thing that bothers the buff fanciers is the vulture hook of the Cochins. At the hook or knee joint will appear a bunch of long stiff feathers that is not accepted in polite chicken society, and this is one of the things that makes the buff breeders of today curse the memories of the man who first thought of using Buff Cochins to make Buff Wyandottes.

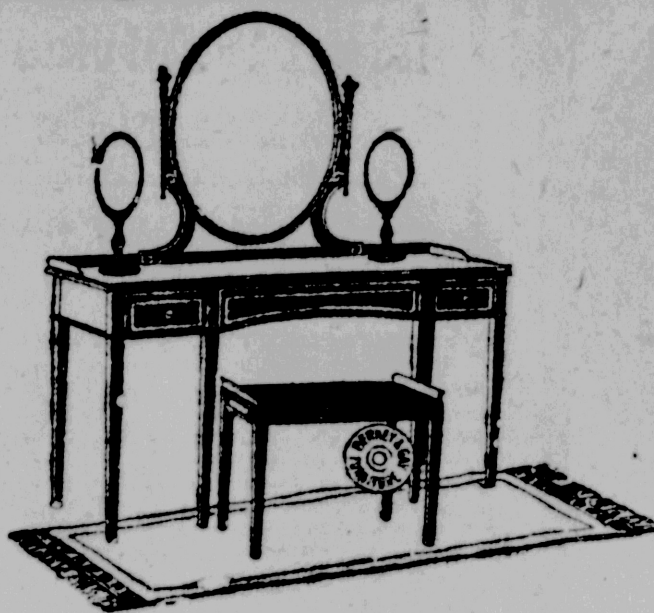

Up-to-Date Ditching Machine.
A ditching machine which contains living quarters for the men who operate it is used in the Florida Everglades. The machine weighs 37 tons and is equipped with a 45-horsepower gasoline engine. The living quarters provided for the crew are on top of the machine. The house which is thus provided will accommodate eight men. An independent electric generator furnishes a searchlight, which makes it possible to run at night. The machine has cut one mile of ditch in ten hours, or 528 cubic yards an hour. Owing to the fact that the muck soil is too soft and spongy to permit of transportation by animals the machine must carry supplies for the eight-mile run.

At the Play.
Mrs. Gotham—Where are you going, John?
Mr. Gotham—Out to get some liquid refreshment.

"But you went for that purpose before, between the acts."
"Well, everybody's getting an encore; why shouldn't I?"

No Go.
Molly—So you really want to marry me?
Cholly—I certainly do.
"But what are we to live on, dear?"
"Why, bread and cheese and kisses."
"It won't do, my boy. I can't make bread, cheese gives me indigestion, and kisses make me hungry."

The Modern Baby.
Now an oculist has discovered that baby's white raiment injures his vision. They've taken away his cradle and his old-time remedies and his fairy stories, and now they want to pinch his snowy pinafore.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

American Mineral Oil

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT

Use of Mineral Oil.

Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food. The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it, for the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.—Kingston Daily Freeman, February 17, 1917.

SIXTY FOOT FLAG MAST IS DONATED

Big Boost Given Flag Fund by Mrs. Codwise and Mrs. Finch—List of Donors for Today.

A great boost has been given the Dorothy Freeman Flag Fund by the generosity of Mrs. Edward B. Codwise and Mrs. Jennie B. Finch, who have given a sixty-foot flag mast. This is equivalent to at least a hundred dollars in money, as the mast is a particularly fine one. This mast will be mounted upon a forty-foot base, making the total height one hundred feet—the same as the pole on the High School grounds. This gift leaves the amount of cash to be raised at approximately $150. As soon as the contributions reach this figure no more subscriptions will be received and would-be donors who are too late will not get their names in the metal box which will be placed in the concrete base to be found by somebody yet unborn, as it will be decades before the ravages of time compel the replacement of the structure. The following sums have been received:

Previously acknowledged	$10 70
Jacob H. Tremper, Jr.	1 00
Robert R. Rodde	1 00
Ward B. Everett	1 00

Accompanying the donation from the Colonel Bruyn Society was a letter reading: "As a society which stands for patriotism and loyalty to the United States flag the Colonel Bruyn Society wishes to contribute the enclosed amount ($5) for the fund which is being raised to buy a flag and flag pole for the Academy Green. Very sincerely yours, Mary Bruyn, secretary."

Leper Hospital in Siam.

It is a far cry to Siam, but there are men fighting in the trenches in France who have come from a more distant country, Cochinchina. J. W. McKean, M. D., of Chienmai, Siam, besides having charge of three native Presbyterian Churches has a membership of about 500 is at the head of two hospitals, one that cared for 245 in-patients and treated 23,250 persons through the dispensary last year and also a hospital and mission for lepers. This busy man is now on his vacation and is resting by telling a work in that far away land. Dr. McKean will speak in the Rondout Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and in the First Presbyterian Church, Kingston, on Sunday evening.

Academy Green Beautified.

A large force of men are at work laying out the Academy Green in paths and flower beds and already the grounds are taking the form of a park. Fine cinder paths are being built and later the flower beds and hedges will be planted.

Idea of Ancient Origin.

All peoples in all times have seen an intimate connection between the moon and fruitfulness, both animal and vegetable. "Even now," says the New York Medical Journal, "the nations which come to our city market owe their excellence to the farmer's careful conjunction of planting time with the phases of the moon." Such ideas have been so universal that man's unconscious mind still preserves them, though his judgment may scorn them as absurd.

Dr. Young has a superb collection of slides with which he illustrates his lectures and he presents his subject in an altogether original way and with vividness. He makes Luther to live before his audience." In addition to the lecture on Sunday afternoon, there will be special music appropriate to the subject. Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

What are the advantages and disadvantages of the left hand drive?

The advantages advanced for left hand drives are as follows:
A.—In passing other vehicles the driver is on the proper side to observe how close he is to the passing vehicle in passing vehicles going in the same direction he is on the proper side to observe whether or not there is a clear passage.

B.—In making turns the driver of a left hand driven car is on the high side of the road and nearest the center.
C.—In drawing up to a curb the driver is on the outside permitting in grass and grass on the right side not necessitating the occupants of the front seat getting out and in on the left side and walking through the mud.

D.—In drawing away from a curb the driver is in a position to observe the cars which may be passing if on the left side.

E.—With the driver on the left side the control levers may be placed in the center of the car and yet be convenient for right hand manipulation.

But there is another side to this question as there is to any question. The advocates of right hand drive advance the following points:

A.—In passing to the right of another vehicle, especially in a country road, the driver of a right hand driven car is in a position to see how close to the curb he may allow himself to approach. In passing to the left the driver is closest to the car he is passing.

B.—In turning to the right the driver is on the right side of the car is able to see how close he is coming to the curb.

C.—In drawing up to the curb the driver is closer to the curb on the right and therefore can observe how close he is to it. He also can open the tonneau door from this side while in the left hand drive arrangement for the passengers must open the door themselves or the driver must climb out to open it for them.

D.—In starting the motor the wheel may be reached when on the right side after cranking to throw the engine down in the minimum of time and without going out in the mud.

Kindly give your opinion as to the value of benzene to be substituted for gasoline. Is it dangerous to use and will it injure the motor more than gasoline?

Benzene is a richer fuel than gasoline and if properly carburized is said to give more power. It starts easily in summer although not as easily as gasoline. In winter it is inadvisable to use it.

As gasoline but owing to the greater number of heat units it contains it will develop more power. It does not evaporate as readily as gasoline. There should be no danger from using it if handled judiciously.

A disadvantage incidental to its use has been that owing to its being richer in carbon than gasoline it would deposit more of this substance on the piston head and interior of the combustion chamber. While this may be true of a poorly refined benzene and when the mixture proportions are not correct it applies equally well when the grades of gasoline are used and when the mixture of gasoline vapor and air supplied the cylinders is too rich.

What proportion of length of connecting rod to length of stroke is good practice in long stroke engines?

About two to one.

Is it possible to have too much crank case compression and what is the cause?

In a properly designed four cycle engine there should not be any crank case compression. That is what the breather is for—to relieve in compression that might result from expansion of the air in the crank case due to the heating up of the engine.

Can you tell me why a two cycle motor backfires in the carburetor?

The reason that a two cycle motor gives this trouble is that the intake and exhaust valves open and close at the same time the theory being that the incoming charge of fresh gas blows the burnt gas out of the combustion chamber. However at certain motor speeds the combustion of the charge is not entirely complete when the intake valve opens, with the result that the incoming charge of fresh gas is prematurely ignited and fires back into the carburetor. Usually a two cycle motor runs smoothly at one or two rates of speed but is prone to backfire at all other speeds especially when the motor is accelerated or retarded.

When going up a grade slowly on high my engine makes a dull thumping sound. The carburetor is set low requiring a long manifold. Do you think this sound is due to condensation in the manifold? I was told that the trouble might be remedied by having a new exhaust manifold made divided a separate exhaust for each pair of cylinders for the trouble might be that the exhausts overlap and the engine is overworked.

The knock is either a spark knock or a gas knock. If it is a spark knock you should retard the ignition somewhat.

And Heroes Are So Few

Often the boy who needs a hero to follow is the one who may be the worst fellow in the community if he need be not supplied. For a boy must have his hero—Fort Worth Star Telegram.

No Use For Them

Richard aged four accompanied by his mother was watching a regiment of soldiers, headed by a band marching by "Mamma" he asked "what's the use of all them soldiers that don't make noise?"

What when in heavy pulling such as up grade work. If it is a gas knock try closing the throttle a little more when pulling up a hill. Open the throttle gradually as the load on the motor becomes heavier. It is not likely that the double manifold would benefit you. Do not try to negotiate steep hills on high gear. Give the motor a chance by dropping to a lower gear when the pull is too much for direct drive. If it were true that the cylinders are not scavenged properly you would notice it at other times than when climbing hills.

I want to lighten the connecting rods and pistons in my car by boring holes in them. Can you tell me the size location and number of holes to be made?

We do not advise the boring of holes in either pistons or rods as it would be of little advantage. In drilling holes in pistons however the common practice is to make them one half inch in diameter. Either two or three rows are drilled depending upon the length of the piston skirt. It is usual for them to have a pitch of about one and one half inch—that is the distance from center to center of the holes should be one and one half inch or diameters. The rows should of course be staggered and in a piston having a diameter of about three and one quarter inches twenty four holes could be put. In doing the work precaution should be taken against cracking or breaking the thin shells of the pistons when drilling the holes. Fill up the inside of the piston with lead or wax a block of wood to fit within it thus making it possible to drill the holes safely.

Will a car consume more or less gasoline running at a speed of sixty miles per hour or at twenty miles per hour going the same distance?

Provided the speeds of sixty and twenty miles per hour are both made on the same gear that the spark in both cases is carried reasonably advanced that the car in both cases is correctly adjusted and that the distances covered are over the same or similar routes a car going under these conditions at twenty miles per hour will show more fuel economy than if it were going at sixty miles per hour. A speed of about thirty miles per hour gives the best economy on the average car with good road conditions.

The type adjustment and adaptability of the carburetor to the motor are features that must be considered in this as some carburetors are made for speed without regard to economy and vice versa.

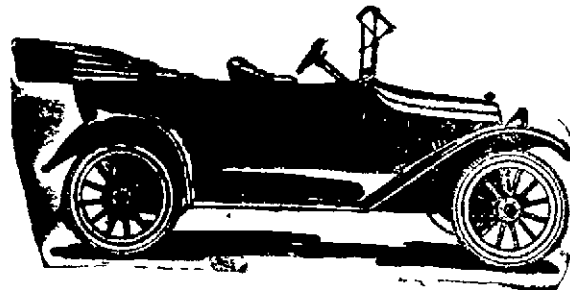

With two cars of the same horsepower which would take the more power a thirty horsepower car with thirty six inch wheels or a thirty horsepower car with forty one inch wheels?

Presuming that the cars premised are otherwise the same a car with thirty six inch wheels would prove the more efficient on smooth and hard roads while on the other hand one with forty one inch wheels would prove the more efficient on soft roads or hilly country. This is simply a question of leverage. Where a lever is required it is more efficient where it is not it is a useless hindrance.

I have a forty horsepower car and I notice that at backfire or pop when after speeding the car up to thirty five or forty miles per hour the throttle is suddenly closed. Is this due to some fault or is it merely the nature of some engine?

I have had three other cars and never noticed it before.

This backfire or popping is caused by your inlet valves which are not as tight as they should be. When the engine is run at high speed and the throttle suddenly closed the volume of gas admitted to the manifold is much too little for the speed of the motor and while the motor is slowing down to the proper speed for such a throttle position a vacuum is created on the suction side of each cylinder that is not filled in the short inlet valve opening. The result is that on the compression stroke when normally the compression is great enough to seal the valve tight there is still a vacuum in the cylinder so that the valve remains open due to slow spring action. When the charge there is in the cylinder collects in two or three strokes and is ignited by the spark with the inlet valve still open. This causes it to leak through the carburetor. Sometimes the compression and volume of the charge is not sufficient to ignite so that it is expelled into the red hot exhaust pipe and muffler where the hot carbon fires it. To totally eradicate this by adjusting the valves alone you would have to in raise their tension to such an extent that they would not only not open properly but would not close properly. The best plan is to fit stiffer springs with the same adjustment. It must be understood, however that sudden throttling is not to be advised as the engine is not intended as a brake. Always throttle and accelerate moderately and use the spark in conjunction with the clutch or clutch and brake to slow down.

Save Hundreds of Dollars By Choosing The CHANDLER SIX

The car's beauty is quite as superior as its mechanical excellence

Thousands Have Purchased Since We Showed Them How the Chandler Checks With High-Priced Cars

People are buying automobiles now with more good common sense than ever before.

And twice as many are buying Chandlers as ever bought before.

The Chandler is Under-Priced Several Hundred Dollars

Men know the Chandler is under-priced, as compared to other cars.

They know that among other Sixes two or three hundred dollars more will not buy a car of such splendid design and equipment, such assuredness of satisfying performance.

They know that at a factory list price of only $1395, the Chandler is, in essential engineering features, like or very similar to the best of the high-priced cars.

Since we told the public—not in an array of adjectives, not in an avalanche of claims, but in just a clear and simple statement of facts—how the Chandler checks in so many vital features with the Pierce-Arrow, Packard, Mercer, Cadillac, Stutz, Locomobile, White and Winton, thousands of men have purchased this great Six.

You, too, will choose the Chandler if you realize how much more high-grade construction the Chandler offers than other cars in the medium-priced field, and—if you know the Chandler motor.

In choosing your car you are seeking all the dependability and long life characteristics of the finest cars of every type, and—you surely seek the utmost in six-cylinder flexibility.

These two qualities, coupled with graceful and comfortable bodies, you want at a fair price.

These qualities the Chandler offers you in a surpassing degree. We don't merely say this is so. We prove it.

What Chandler Price and Quality Have Done

The Chandler price is low. We have kept it low. We have cut into our per car profit repeatedly to keep it low.

And keeping the price so low and the car so good has built, in four years' time, a great coast-to-coast and all-the-world-around business at which the industry marvels.

Still it is just good business policy—or what the Chandler Company and Chandler dealers conceive to be good business policy.

The best light weight Six that the broadest motor car engineering experience can build, and at a fair price! That's the Chandler story.

There is No Inflation in Chandler Price

There is no inflation in Chandler price, no padding, no "easy profit," no "wide margin to take care of long trades."

If there should be any doubt in your mind as to this, if there is a question as to which of the medium-priced sixes would serve you best, just see how the Chandler checks with the high-priced cars and see how the others do not.

The Chandler motor, developed through four years of conscientious and skilful manufacturing effort and brought to a state of approximate perfection, is the heart of this great car.

High tension magneto ignition, separate unit electric system, solid one-piece cast aluminum crank case extending from frame to frame and giving perfect rigidity to the engine mounting, silent spiral-bevel gear full floating rear axle, silent chain drive for motor shafts, light running annular ball bearings in transmission differential and rear wheels and many other typically high-grade features are Chandler features.

HOOKS VOTED $10 FOR RED CROSS

Fire Laddies Also Aid Fund For Flag on Academy Green—Hon. H. R. DeWitt Makes Address.

The Central Hook and Ladder company held its regular monthly meeting Friday night and much routine business was transacted. There was a large number of members present. The company voted to donate $10 to the Red Cross and also to donate a sum of money to the fund for the purchase of a flag to be hoisted on the old Kingston Academy grounds. It was announced that one of the members of the company had enlisted in Company M and on motion he was exempted from the payment of dues to the Hooks during his services in the army. An election was held for the office of second assistant foreman in place of N. Palisi, and Leo E. Weber was chosen for that place. A new member, James Dunbar was elected to the company. Several members were also expelled for non-payment of dues.

Following the meeting a fine banquet was served by Bert Davis, the caterer. All present were greatly pleased with the excellence of the menu and the service. A number of guests were present. Ex-Assemblyman Henry R. DeWitt, who is a member of the company, made a splendid address. The Hooks have about 150 members and are still growing and all take interest in their fire duties as well as other affairs.

ELIMINATE DELAY IN HIGHEST COURT

Governor Whitman Signs Bill Framed by State Bar Association Committee of Which Judge Clearwater Was Chairman—Argument Before Executive.

Governor Whitman has signed the bill framed by the committee of the New York State Bar Association, of which Judge Clearwater was chairman, and which largely will eliminate the delays that for years have prevented the prompt consideration and decision of cases by the court of appeals. At the dinner of the association at the Hotel Astor last January, the judge was selected by it to pay its tribute to Chief Judge William Bartlett of that court, and in doing so he commented upon the delay that for fifteen years had prevented an early hearing of appeals to that court, and moved that a committee be appointed by the newly elected president, Charles Evans Hughes, to consult with the newly elected Chief Judge Frank H. Isaac of Syracuse, and the other members of the court, with the view to some extent of eliminating those delays. Judge Hughes appointed a committee, of which he made Judge Clearwater chairman. Among the other members were Elihu Root, Alton B. Parker, Morgan J. O'Brien, Ex-Judges George L. Ingraham, D. Cady Herriek, Nathan L. Miller, Daniel J. Kenefick.

The committee, after consulting with the judges of the court, decided to recommend the restriction of appeals to that court, first to cases where the judgment of the trial term was reversed, or modified; second, to cases where it was affirmed by a divided appellate division; third, to cases involving constitutional questions; fourth, to cases where the public interest required a review of even a unanimous decision of the appellate division. It then called a special meeting of the state bar association, which approved the report, and bills to carry it into effect were introduced in the legislature. They passed that body, and came up to Governor Whitman this week when a protest was entered on behalf of the New York County Lawyers' Association against them.

The governor ordered a hearing at which J. Noble Hayes, a leading New York lawyer, appeared in opposition, and Judge Hughes, Judge Ingraham, Judge Clearwater and William D. Guthrie in favor of them. Mr. Hayes at great length argued that it was against public policy to restrict appeals to the court of appeals. That every citizen had the right to have his case passed upon by the court of last resort regardless of its character, or of the amount involved. That if the court as at present constituted was unable to keep up with the work it should be increased to double or three times its present number. He said that the measure recommended by the State Bar Association reflected only the views of lawyers who had attained eminence in the profession, and who had but scant regard for the obscure members of the bar who if the bills were signed never in the course of their life would be able to present a case to the court of last resort. He expressed his grief that Judge Clearwater, who he said for years had been regarded by the bar of the state as its champion against judicial arrogance and oppression, should array himself on the side of restrictive appeals.

After Judge Hughes, Judge Ingraham and Mr. Guthrie had spoken in favor of the bills, Judge Clearwater, as chairman of the committee, closed the argument. Among other things he said it was a grotesque misconception of the function of the court of appeals; that it was its duty to hear every case which any litigant might choose to take there; that the court was the highest division of one of the three coordinate branches of the government of the state; that its duty was to define the powers and limitations of the other two coordinate branches, legislative and executive; to construe the common and the statute law; to lay down broad legal principles for the guidance of the citizen; that there were about eleven millions of people in the state, of which a very inconsiderable fraction ever went into the courts; that while the courts were open to even the humblest, not even the most affluent had the inherent right to have his differences with his adversary passed upon by three successive tribunals. If he had a fair trial before an impartial judge and jury and was defeated, and then had a careful and dispassionate review of the law and the facts by the appellate division of five judges, all of whom decided against him, there was a fair presumption that his contention was erroneous, and unless some question of controlling consequence was involved, there was no reason why he should be permitted again to appeal.

The judge said he was not aware that he had ever been regarded as a champion of the bar. He was, however, a strong advocate of its independence of the judiciary, but also he believed that upon the bar in the first instance devolved the duty of eliminating, so far as possible, those delays which largely because of the inertia of the bar had developed to the proportion of a public scandal. He had labored to this end in the constitutional convention, and he expected to the end of his career to continue his labor.

Within an hour after the close of the argument Governor Whitman signed the bill.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, May 5.—After irregularity in the first few minutes trading, the stock market today became active and strong, and at the end of the first fifteen minutes nearly everything traded in joined in a vigorous upward movement. Steel Common was opened down 1/4 at 113 1/4, was persistently bought advancing to 114 1/4, and Bethlehem Steel B advanced 1/4 to 119 1/4. The greatest gain in the first 15 minutes was in Delaware and Hudson which rose 2 1/4 to 111. Industrial Alcohol moved up 1 1/4 to 116, and Norfolk and Western advanced one point to 119 1/4. The Marine issues made fractional gains, the Preferred opening 3/4 up at 77 1/4. Reading yielded 1/4 at the opening at 88 1/4 followed by an advance to 89. Utah Copper recovered its early loss. Distillers was exceptionally weak, declining to 13 1/4. American Can opened 1 point up at 42 and Colorado Fuel advanced 1/4 to 46 1/4. Lehigh Valley advanced 1/4 to 61 1/4. Utah Copper became prominent at the end of the first fifteen minutes, making a quick advance to 113 1/4, a gain of 1 1/4 from its opening.

The final tone was heavy. Increased weakness was shown in nearly all of the railroad stocks in the last hour of trading when many issues, including Atchison and similar dividend paying shares sustained additional declines, selling at the lowest range reached in a long period. The low priced railway shares including Erie and Missouri Pacific continued in supply at concessions. Steel Common continued to show resisting power to bear attacks, although it sold off to 113 1/4, it rallied to 113 1/4 and at the close showed a recession for the day of only 1/4. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds heavy.

Judging a Cigar.

How can the ordinary person who smokes tell a good cigar from a poor one? This question was put to a prominent manufacturer, who answered in this fashion:

"There is but one way that I know, in order to get everything that is in a cigar—the aroma and taste—it is necessary to light the cigar, take a couple of puffs, then allow the smoke to pass through the nostrils. When you do this you get the two things that are in a weed, the aroma and the taste.

"It is interesting to a man who knows the business to see a smoker take a cigar, look at it and then place it to his nose for a smell. Neither the look nor smell of an unlighted cigar means anything.

"I repeat, it is necessary to light it and start to smoke it in order to learn whether it is good or not."—New York Globe.

People Who Do Not Whistle.

Arabia must be a heaven for those whose lives are made a burden to them by the whistler. The Arab maintains that a whistler's mouth cannot be purified for forty days and nights, and they assert of the whistler that Satan has touched his body and caused him to produce the offensive sound. Then there are the natives of the Tonga Islands, Polynesia, who hold that it is a sin to whistle, as it is an act disrespectful to God. Even in some districts in north Germany villagers declare that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep.

Too Much Competition.

"Now, where do you want your speech to come?" "Put me on before the celery is served. Two hundred people eating celery in unison make it very difficult to be heard."

SIXTY FOOT FLAG MAST IS DONATED

Big Boost Given Flag Fund by Mrs. Codriss and Mrs. Finch—List of Donors for Today.

A great boost has been given the Dorothy Freeman Flag Fund by the generosity of Mrs. Edward B. Codriss and Mrs. Jennie B. Finch, who have given a sixty-foot flag mast. This is equivalent to at least a hundred dollars in money, as the mast is a particularly fine one. This mast will be mounted upon a forty-foot base, making the total height one hundred feet—the same as the pole on the High School grounds. This gift leaves the amount of cash to be raised at approximately $150. As soon as the contributions reach this figure no more subscriptions will be received, and would-be donors who are too late will not get their names in the metal box which will be placed in the concrete base to be found by somebody yet unborn, as it will be decomposed by the ravages of time compel the replacement of the structure. The following sums have been received:

Previously acknowledged	$10 70
Jacob H. Tremper, Jr.	1 00
Robert R. Rodia	1 00
Ward B. Everett	1 00

Catharine McCannons	1 00
Margaret Healy	1 00

Very sincerely yours, Mary Bruyn, secretary."

Loper Hospital in Siam.

It is a far cry to Siam but there are men fighting in the trenches in France who have come from a more distant country, Cochina, China. J. W. McKean, M. D., of Chingmai, Siam, besides having charge of three native Presbyterian Churches a membership of about 500 is at the head of two hospitals, one that cared for 243 in-patients and treated 23,350 persons through the dispensary last year and also a hospital and mission for lepers. This busy man is now on his vacation and is resting by telling a work in that far away land. Dr. McKean will speak in the Roundout Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and in the First Presbyterian Church, Kingston, on Sunday evening.

Idea of Ancient Origin.

All peoples in all times have seen an intimate connection between the moon and fruitfulness, both animal and vegetable. "Even now," says the New York Medical Journal, "the onions which come in our city market owe their excellence to the former's careful conjunction of planting time with the phases of the moon." Such ideas have been so universal that man's unconscious mind still preserves them, though his judgment may scorn them as absurd.

Words of Inspiration.

I am determined to sacrifice estate, ease, health, applause, and even life, to the sacred calls of my country.—James Ogle.

Illustrated Luther Lecture.

There will be an illustrated Luther lecture at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The lecture will be given by Dr. G. B. C. Young of Brooklyn, N. Y., on the subject "From the Miner's Son to the Prophet of Wittenberg." Dr. Young has an exceptionally fine collection of slides and presents his subject in an original manner. This subject is what one of the New York papers says about the lecture: "Dr. Young delivered his lecture before a large audience in the Church of Our Saviour on April 24 and it was received with the greatest appreciation. Dr. Young has a superb collection of slides with which he illustrates his lectures and he presents his subject in an altogether original way and with vividness. He makes Luther to live before his audience." In addition to the lecture on Sunday afternoon, there will be special music appropriate to the subject. The lecture closes with Luther's best known hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God."

Save Hundreds of Dollars By Choosing The CHANDLER SIX

The car's beauty is quite as superior as its mechanical excellence

Thousands Have Purchased Since We Showed Them How the Chandler Checks With High-Priced Cars

People are buying automobiles now with more good common sense than ever before.

And twice as many are buying Chandlers as ever bought before.

The Chandler is Under-Priced Several Hundred Dollars

Men know the Chandler is under-priced, as compared to other cars.

They know that among other Sixes two or three hundred dollars more will not buy a car of such splendid design and equipment, such assuredness of satisfying performance.

They know that at a factory list price of only $1395, the Chandler is, in essential engineering features, like or very similar to the best of the high-priced cars.

Since we told the public—not in an array of adjectives, not in an avalanche of claims, but in just a clear and simple statement of facts—how the Chandler checks in so many vital features with the Pierce-Arrow, Packard, Mercer, Cadillac, Stutz, Locomobile, White and Winton, thousands of men have purchased this great Six.

You, too, will choose the Chandler if you realize how much more high-grade construction the Chandler offers than other cars in the medium-priced field, and—if you know the Chandler motor.

In choosing your car you are seeking all the dependability and long life characteristics of the finest cars of every type, and—you surely seek the utmost in six-cylinder flexibility.

These two qualities, coupled with graceful and comfortable bodies, you want at a fair price.

These qualities the Chandler offers you in a surpassing degree. We don't merely say this is so. We prove it.

What Chandler Price and Quality Have Done

The Chandler price is low. We have kept it low. We have cut into our per car profit repeatedly to keep it low.

And keeping the price so low and the car so good has built, in four years' time, a great coast-to-coast and all-the-world-around business at which the industry marvels.

Still it is just good business policy—or what the Chandler Company and Chandler dealers conceive to be good business policy.

The best light weight Six that the broadest motor car engineering experience can build, and at a fair price! That's the Chandler story.

There is No Inflation in Chandler Price

There is no inflation in Chandler price. No padding, no easy profit, no "wide margin to take care of long trades."

If there should be any doubt in your mind as to this, if there is a question as to which of the medium-priced sixes would serve you best, just see how the Chandler checks with the high-priced cars and see how the others do not.

The Chandler motor, developed through four years of conscientious and skilful manufacturing effort and brought to a state of approximate perfection, is the heart of this great car.

High tension magneto ignition, separate unit electric system, solid one-piece cast aluminum crank case extending from frame to frame and giving perfect rigidity to the engine mounting, silent spiral-bevel gear full floating rear axle, silent chain drive for motor shafts, light running annular ball bearings in transmission differential and rear wheels and many other typically high-grade features are Chandler features.

ELIMINATE DELAY IN HIGHEST COURT

Governor Whitman Signs Bill Framed by State Bar Association Committee of Which Judge Clearwater Was Chairman—Argument Before Executive.

Governor Whitman has signed the bill framed by the committee of the New York State Bar Association, of which Judge Clearwater was chairman, and which largely will eliminate the delay that for years have prevented the prompt consideration and decision of cases by the court of appeals. At the dinner of the association at the Hotel Astor last January, the judge was selected to pay his parting tribute to Chief Judge William C. M. Barlow of that court, and in doing so he commented upon the delay that for fifteen years have prevented the prompt consideration and decision of cases by the court of appeals. At the dinner of the association at the Hotel Astor last January, the judge was selected to pay his parting tribute to Chief Judge William C. M. Barlow of that court, and in doing so he commented upon the delay that for fifteen years have prevented the prompt consideration and decision of cases by the court of appeals. At the dinner of the association at the Hotel Astor last January, the judge was selected to pay his parting tribute to Chief Judge William C. M. Barlow of that court, and in doing so he commented upon the delay that for fifteen years have prevented the prompt consideration and decision of cases by the court of appeals.

The committee after consulting with the judges of the court, decided to recommend the restriction of appeals to that court, first to cases where the judgment of the trial term was reversed, or modified; second, to cases involving constitutional questions; fourth, to cases where the public interest required a review of even a unanimous decision of the appellate division it then called a special meeting of the state bar association, which approved the report, and bills to carry it into effect were introduced in the legislature. They passed that body, and came up to Governor Whitman this week when a protest was entered on behalf of the New York County Lawyers' Association against them.

The governor ordered a hearing at which J. Noble Hayes, a leading New York lawyer, appeared in opposition, and Judge Hughes, Judge Ingraham, Judge Clearwater and William D. Guthrie in favor of them. Mr. Hayes at great length argued that it was against public policy to restrict appeals to the court of appeals. That every citizen had the right to have his case passed upon by the court of last resort regardless of its character, or of the amount involved. That if the court as at present constituted was unable to keep up with the work it should be increased to double or three times its present number. He said that the measure recommended by the State Bar Association, reflected only the views of lawyers who had attained eminence in the profession, and who had but scant regard for the obscure numbers of the bar who if the bills were signed never in the course of their life would be heard by the court of last resort. He expressed his grief that Judge Clearwater, who he said for years had been rewarded by the bar of the state for his champion against judicial arrogance and oppression, should array himself on the side of restrictive appeals.

After Judge Hughes, Judge Ingraham and Mr. Guthrie had spoken in favor of the bills, Judge Clearwater, as chairman of the committee, closed the argument. Among other things he said it was a grotesque misconception of the function of the court of appeals; that it was its duty to hear every case which any litigant might choose to take there; that the court was the highest division of one of the three coordinate branches of the government of the state; that its duty was to define the powers and limitations of the other two coordinate branches, legislative and executive, to construe the common and the statute law, to lay down broad legal principles for the guidance of the citizen; that there were about eleven millions of people in the state, of which a very inconsiderable fraction ever went into the courts; that while the courts were open to every humblest, not even the most affluent had the inherent right to have his differences with his adversary passed upon by three successive tribunals. It had a fair trial before an impartial judge and jury and was defeated, and then had a careful and dispassionate review of the law and the facts by the appellate division of five judges, all of whom decided against him, there was a fair presumption that his contention was erroneous, and unless some question of controlling consequence was involved, there was no reason why he should be permitted again to appeal. The judge said he was not aware that he had ever been regarded as a champion of the bar. He was, however, a strong advocate of its independence of the judiciary, but also he believed that upon the bar in the first instance devolved the duty of eliminating, so far as possible, those delays in the administration of justice which largely because of its inertia the bar had developed to the proportion of a public scandal. He had labored to this end in the constitutional convention, and he expected to the end of his career to continue his labor.

When an hour after the close of the argument Governor Whitman signed the bill.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, May 5.—After irregularity in the first few minutes trading, the stock market today became active and strong, and at the end of the first fifteen minutes nearly everything traded in joined in a vigorous upward movement. Steel Common was opened down 1/4 at 112 1/4 was persistently bought advancing to 114 1/4, and Bethlehem Steel B advanced 1/4 to 119 1/4. The greatest gain in the first 15 minutes was in Delaware and Hudson which rose 2 1/2 to 111. Industrial Alcohol moved up 1 1/2 to 116, and Norfolk and Western advanced one point to 117 1/4. The Marine issues made fractional gains, the Preferred opening 1/4 up at 77 1/4. Reading yielded 1/4 at the opening at 88 1/4 followed by an advance to 89 1/4. Utah Copper recovered its early loss. Distillers was exceptionally weak, declining to 12 1/2. American Gas opened 1 point up at 42 and Colorado Fuel advanced 1/4 to 46 1/4. Lohm Valley advanced 1/4 to 61 1/4. Utah Copper became prominent at the end of the first fifteen minutes, making a quick advance to 113 1/4, a gain of 1 1/4 from its opening.

The final tone was heavy. Increased weakness was shown in nearly all of the railroad stocks in the last hour of trading when many values, including Atchafalaya and similar dividend paying shares sustained additional declines, selling at the lowest range reached in a long period. The low priced railway shares including Erie and Missouri Pacific continued in supply at concessions. Steel Common continued to show resisting power to bear attacks although it sold off to 113 1/4, it rallied to 113 3/4 and at the close showed a recession for the day of only 1/4. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds heavy.

Judging a Cigar.
How can the ordinary person who smokes tell a good cigar from a poor one? This question was put to a prominent manufacturer, who answered in this fashion:

"There is but one way that I know in order to get everything that is in a cigar, the aroma and taste—it is necessary to light the cigar, take a couple of puffs, then allow the smoke to pass through the nostrils. When you do this you get the two things that are in a weed, the aroma and the taste. "It is interesting to a man who knows the business to see a smoker take a cigar, look at it and then place it to his nose for a smell. Neither the look nor smell of an unlighted cigar means anything. "I repeat, it is necessary to light it and start to smoke it in order to learn whether it is good or not."—New York Globe.

People Who Do Not Whistle.
Arabia must be a heaven for those whose lives are made a burden to them by the whistle. The Arab maintains that a whistler's mouth cannot be put to rest for forty days and nights, and they assert of the whistler that Satan has touched his body and caused him to produce the offensive sound. Then there are the natives of the Tonga Islands, Polynesia, who hold that it is a sin to whistle, as it is an act disrespectful to God. Even in some districts in North Germany villagers declare that if one whistles in the evening it makes the angels weep.

Too Much Competition.
"Now, where do you want your speech to come?" "Not me on before the celery is served. Two hundred people eating celery in unison make it very difficult to be heard."
